By G. K. HODENFIELD
AP Education Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Vice Adm. Hyman G. Rickover has blasted another blistering attack on U.S. public education, calling it soft, frill-laden, anti-intellectual and administered by incompetents.

There were indications that those who have stood most firmly at his side are finding his advocacy of European education too strong.

Rickover was a featured speaker Friday night at the annual meeting of the Council for Basic Education, a nonprofit organization dedicated to "the encouragement and maintenance of high academic standards in the American public schools."

Its membership is made up of educators and laymen who believe, with Rickover, that public education in this country leaves much to be desired. The council in the past has given wide publication to Rickover's views.

Rickover told the council, "The plain fact is that the educational value of a school year is at least a third higher abroad than here. European standards of teacher education are notably higher. Europeans attain any given educational level years before our children get there. We shall in the end have to accept separate schooling at the secondary level—on the European pattern."

Immediately after his speech, a panel which had shared the speakers' platform with Rickover took the admiral to task and declared unanimously that this country need not, and should not, copy the European system of education.

Audience reaction indicated overwhelming approval of the panel's views.

Figures a Lot of Snow This Winter

CRABORCHARD, Tenn. (AP) — If you think the drought is bad right now, you just haven't talked with Crab Orchard's lady weather prophet lately. The winter ahead, she says, looks like a dilly.

"If we get a snow for all the fogs I counted in August," Mrs. James Lane said Thursday, "we're going to need sideboards on the shovels."

Helen Lane's annual prediction of the weather ahead — based on such signs as August fogs, the number of horned nests close to the ground, the density of the spider population and thickness of tree bark — has become something of a Tennessee institution.

Last year, she said, the winter was "going to be a humdinger." Last year turned out to be just that — with below-zero weather touching much of Dixie for the first time in years. From December to March, the only Southern comfort was in a bottle.

According to Helen, 43, a pert mother of three, the number of fogs on the Cumberland Plateau during August forecasts the number of snows that will fall later on.

"I counted 23 fogs in August," she said. "Eight of them were heavy ones. If there's anything in this business of reading signs we sure could have a rough winter."

Questions Rockefeller Credentials

By WALTER R. MEARS
HARTFORD, Conn. (AP) — Sen. Barry Goldwater has questioned Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller's credentials as a Republican.

But Goldwater insisted anew that he doesn't want to argue with other Republicans.

And the Arizona senator said he would support Rockefeller if the New York governor became the GOP choice to challenge President Kennedy for the White House next year.

Political surveys rate Goldwater an early favorite for the Republican nomination.

With Rockefeller in California arguing that Goldwater's conservative views are out of step with the voters, the senator jabbed back at a news conference Thursday.

A reporter asked Goldwater to comment on Rockefeller's statement that he is a moderate while Goldwater and Kennedy are at extremes of the right and the left.

"It would be very difficult to place the governor's political philosophy if he states it that way," Goldwater replied. "I am a conservative. I don't know where the governor would be but I doubt if it would be a Republican position."

Another Goldwater comment: "The governor must belong to some other party, I don't know."

But Goldwater, who has spurned a Rockefeller challenge to debate Republican principles, added "I don't want to fight other Republicans."

"There are enough opportunities with Kennedy to keep a dozen of us busy 24 hours a day."

Against More Power for SEC Group

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Atty. Gen. Bruce Bennett, a staunch foe of federal control in all areas, urged his congressman today to fight a pending bill to broaden regulatory powers of the federal Securities and Exchange Commission.

Bennett wrote Rep. Oren Harris, D-Ark., and sent copies of the letter to attorneys general of the 49 other states, declaring that he feels the bill would empower the federal government through the SEC, to "pretty well run the insurance industry."

Bennett dwelt on adverse affects he said the bill would have on insurance companies but he also criticized provisions which would give the SEC more power over securities dealers.

The measure, Senate Bill 1642, already has passed the Senate and is pending before Harris' House Commerce Committee.

Bennett said that insurance companies in Arkansas already are well-regulated by the state Insurance Department and insurance departments of other states also are doing a good job.

The bill, Bennett said, would permit the SEC "to do through rules what is now done by the states through law."

Bennett said the expense of filing with the SEC reports required by the bill would damage financial structure of smaller insurance companies. He estimated the cost at $15,000 a year for the average company and said it would result in a premium increase for policyholders.

Bennett urged Harris to amend the bill in his committee to remove the provisions about insurance companies and he said in an interview that he would like to see the entire bill beaten. He said provisions covering banks and mutual insurance companies were amended out of the bill in the Senate and, as the bill now stands, it would affect 110 domestic stock insurance companies in Arkansas.

Bennett told Harris he would oppose any legislation which would weaken authority of state agencies in the insurance and securities fields.

Return Home and Shut Up Says Sister

By SPENCER DAVIS

WASHINGTON (AP) — The younger sister of Mrs. Ngo Dinh Nhu challenged the fiery first lady of South Viet Nam today to return home and give up politics "before she does more harm to our country."

Speaking out in an emotion-charged interview on the ninth anniversary of President Ngo Dinh Diem's election, Mr. Tran Le Chi said sadly:

"I think there is nothing to rejoice about this year. The situation is even worse than it was before President Ngo Dinh Diem and his family came to power. The people were not as unhappy then as they are now."

"I am a Catholic," she said. "I am really sad for the Catholics in Viet Nam because the work of so many missionaries for so long will be lost because of the action of this family."

"I would like the Catholics of America to understand that this struggle is not between Catholics and the Buddhists. Even the Catholics are suffering from this situation."

The Diem family, as well as Mrs. Nhu, are Roman Catholics. She said that "the Buddhists are like you and me and it is not easy for a monk to give up his life."

"But when they have a feeling of injustice is too strong this is the only way that they can speak. The people of Viet Nam are peaceful, quiet and philosophic."

"Now they burn themselves to death because they cannot speak otherwise."

She said that Ngo Dinh Nhu should "tell his wife to stop talking and give up politics. Nhu President Diem's brother, is considered by many to be the real power in the regime."

"I think she has harmed her country by not staying at home, and she has harmed the women of Viet Nam, as well as the men."

Tran Le Chi shares the attractive appearance of her sister as well as an ability to speak with great pungency.

She said that originally her sister and Ngo Dinh Nhu, were poor people "and they were nice people."

"Since they have been in power they have changed a lot. Really, I think they have lost touch with the people of Viet Nam."

49 Miners Trapped in Germany

HILDESHEIM, Germany (AP) — Rescue workers made contact today with 7 of 49 miners trapped by flood waters in an iron mine near Hildesheim, mine officials reported.

Another 80 miners escaped when waters from an artificial lake nearby flooded into the lower level of the 300-foot-deep mine Thursday night.

The seven miners who were first contacted had managed to reach a side shaft when the lake waters flooded in.

The fate of the 42 other trapped men was uncertain. Hildesheim, in northwest Germany, is 17 miles southeast of Hannover.

Contact with the seven men in the side shaft brought hope that all of the trapped men might be reached and brought to safety. So far, the rescuers have only been able to hear the trapped men.

In 1960, 33 men lost their lives in a mine disaster in the area.

No official theory of the cause of the accident was advanced. But some local residents thought construction of a big highway approach near the lake may have weakened its shoreline.

Narrow shafts were being drilled in an effort to locate the men. Four drills were at work, and officials planned to enlarge them if the missing miners were located, and bring up the men.

Families of the trapped men gathered at the mine gate, waiting for news.

Horse Found But Not Two Prisoners

CLARENDON, Ark. (AP) —

Two prisoners who escaped Wednesday from Tucker State Prison Farm were being sought in the Clarendon area today. The 25-year-old white horse on which they galloped bareback to freedom was found exhausted in woods near Coy, Ark., Thursday.

"They rode that poor horse almost to death," said Lt. Buck Halsell of the State Police. "The trustys at the prison farm were really burned up when they saw what they had done."

Halsell said the trustys "loved that old nag more than their wives."

The escapees, Charles Edward Cooksey, 22, of Elkhart, Tex., and Henry Lester Suggett, 20, of Clarendon, rode off the farm about 8:30 a.m. Wednesday. Halsell said they apparently stole a truck and a car after leaving the horse. Both vehicles later were found abandoned.

After the prisoners left the horse, they hid under a bridge where an armed trusty was on guard, Halsell said. They escaped after dark.

They stole the car at Coy, abandoned it at Stuttgart, stole the truck and abandoned it a few miles north of Stuttgart and fled into woods.

Cooksey worked in the prison laundry and Suggett helped train bloodhounds at the prison farm by letting them trail him. Cooksey was serving a sentence for robbery and Suggett, for burglary and grand larceny.

They were at first thought to be armed with a .22 caliber rifle and a shotgun. The weapons later were found near a dog kennel at the farm. Prison officials still said the two might be armed.

Fire Claims Kin of Late Actress

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (AP) — The mother, daughter and two grandchildren of late comedienne Joan Davis were killed in a pre-dawn fire today, the Fire Department said.

Fire officials said the blaze broke out in the master bedroom of the home of the comedienne's daughter, Mrs. Beverly Colbert, 29. The bedroom of an adjoining bedroom were destroyed but the rest of the house suffered only smoke damage.

Also killed were Mrs. Nina Mae Davis, 70, and Mrs. Colbert's two children, Guy, 7, and Larry, 4.

The coroner's office listed the cause of the fire as smoking in bed.

Mrs. Colbert's husband, Martin, was in Los Angeles on a business trip.

Education Lag

LONDON (AP) — A government-sponsored committee recommends that Britain spend $4 billion to more than double its university enrollment by 1981.

The committee said Britain lags behind the United States in higher education. It recommended Britain's universities be increased from 22 to 60 and said this would make room for 560,000 students, as compared with 216,000 at present.

A FOREST PRODUCTS TEAM COMPOSED OF HASKELL Jones, Thurston Hulsey, Bill Gunter and Jack Lowe spoke to the Rotary Club Friday, pointing out the value of timber and timber products to the economy of Hempstead County. George Walden, program chairman, arranged the program.

Tito Boards Ship for Homeland

slavia's President Tito boarded a ship for home today, with a farewell both of cheers and slurs. But the sailing itself was delayed, with reports of a bomb scare aboard ship.

Surrounded by security guards, Tito walked up the gangway while about 200 well-wishers applauded and chanted, "Tito, Tito, Tito."

But a short distance away, held back by police barricades, another group of about 15 pickets held flying balloons painted with signs such as "Tito Pig," "Hang Tito" and "Tito murderer."

The ship, the Dutch liner Rotterdam, was scheduled to sail at noon, but its departure was delayed, amid reports that the reason was a warning that a bomb had been planted aboard.

Hundreds of uniformed police, and at least 100 New York detectives, were on hand in the area, along with security forces of the State Department and of Yugoslavia's diplomatic agencies.

High police officials and several firemen boarded the ship in the wake of bomb reports.

Despite the tension around his departure, as well as his stay here, Tito said his visit had been a gratifying one, and that his talks with President Kennedy had been "very useful."

A Recap of the Old Tavern Story at Rocky Mound Where Rich Guests Just Disappear

By MARY ANITA LASETER
Star Feature Writer

Though Brom Bones and the Headless Horseman were found in New England, that area didn't have a corner on the market of Halloween-type stories. We had some good ones right here in Southwest Arkansas. For instance, at Rock Mound.

In the early '80's there was a tavern there that was a favorite stopping place for rich planters going to and from Camden to sell their cotton. It was operated by an old man, his wife and their two sons, and they were getting much too rich much too fast, people soon began to feel.

Upon noticing more carefully what was going on, it was found that some of the wealthy guests who stopped at this tavern would disappear and their fine saddle horses would appear later in other owner's hands. Suspicious? Of course. But not any more so than the fact that garden of the inn was always freshly plowed, although nothing ever grew in it. Were the travelers being robbed and murdered and the old innkeeper hoarding the spoils? Maybe, but there was no conclusive evidence.

Finally, the old man died and left everything to his wife, and hard feelings grew rapidly between mother and sons. Some said she hid the treasure to keep them from getting it. Anyway, it wasn't long until she died, too, and her secret was

Casals Day at United Nations

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — It was Pablo Casals Day at the United Nations.

They packed the blue and gold Assembly Hall to hear the 37-year-old world-renowned cellist conduct his own oratorio, El Pesiebre (The Manger). At the end, he received a standing ovation.

They provided him with a leather stool, but he was on his feet most of the time, conducting with vigor the Casals Festival Oratorio of Puerto Rico. The oratorio was sung by the Cleveland Orchestra Chorus under the leadership of Robert Shaw.

Grand Coulee Dam in Washington — A big wave comparable to the Italian one is a very remote possibility here," Carder said.

Grand Coulee is in an area without heavy rainfall, there are no high mountains there and any falling rocks and earth would be absorbed by the Columbia River below the dam without harm to the populated areas.

Shasta Dam in Northern California — "The dam has been in existence some two decades and if there was any danger of a major slide, it would have occurred by now," Carder said.

The earth there is largely composed of hard volcanic rock covered by soil, but the soil is not deep. If it came down, it would only be in small amounts. Furthermore, although there have been earthquakes about 50 or 60 miles to the west, no major one has occurred close to the dam."

Hungry Horse Dam in north-west Montana — This high dam is located in a mountainous, forested area with quite a heavy rainfall. But Carder said there have never been landslides in the area. He added that the dam is located in a "moderate" earthquake area, and said "the potentiality of a heavy earthquake cannot be ruled out."

When an intended victim was decided upon, he was taken to the dining room and seated at the table in a chair which was placed directly over a trap door. The door was operated by a lever located near a member of this "ever-loving" family.

It was a simple matter to pull the lever at the appointed time, dropping the guest into a well dug for that purpose. After the victim was killed, he was robbed and the body was buried in the garden, thus erasing all traces of the crime.

Was all of this mere legend? No one knows for sure, but farmers plowing the field where the tavern had stood found human bones as late as the 1930's.

Cites Success in United Nations

FORT SMITH, Ark. (AP) — Former Arkansas Congressman Brooks Hays said Thursday night that the cost of American participation in the United Nations costs little, compared to the amount the nation spends to stay in military readiness.

The United States has never lost a major point and never has been forced to use its Security Council veto, while Russia has used its veto more than 50 times, Hays said.

The cost of U. N. participation by the U.S. amounts to about $1 per person each year, compared to a military budget that is 250 times larger, he said.

Hays spoke at a United Nations anniversary observance sponsored by three Fort Smith women's organizations. He spoke at Fort Smith Junior College.

Avalanche Danger to Dams Small

By G. K. HODENFIELD

WASHINGTON (AP) — Conditions similar to those which led to the recent Vaiont Dam tragedy in Italy are generally lacking in the United States, a veteran seismologist and geologist said today.

The appraisal came from Dr. Dean S. Carder of the U.S. Coast and Geodetic Survey.

In the Italian disaster, between 3,000 and 4,000 persons died Oct. 9 when a landslide struck the reservoir behind the Vaiont Dam. A huge wall of water swept over the dam and into the densely populated Piave Valley below.

The only similar landslide in the United States was about six years ago in Alaska, Carder said, and involved a bay rather than a dam.

An avalanche, in large part from a glacier, fell into Latuya Bay, about 150 miles west of Juneau, and sent a wave crashing 1,600 feet high over a mountain spur. Several fishermen lost their lives.

Carder said that although most of America's major dams have stood the test of time, "This is not to rule out the possibility of a landslide caused by an earthquake, similar to the one which occurred in Montana four years ago, killing 28 people."

Even in the Montana quake, Carder said, the Hebgen Dam on the Madison River suffered only slight damage.

Carder made this assessment of some of this country's major dams:

Hoover Dam on the Nevada-Arizona state line — There have been several small slides into the reservoir but none caused damage. Most of the slides occurred around 1941, when Lake Mead behind the dam was at its highest level, within about 20 feet of the top of the dam.

Grand Coulee Dam in Washington — A big wave comparable to the Italian one is a very remote possibility here," Carder said.

Grand Coulee is in an area without heavy rainfall, there are no high mountains there and any falling rocks and earth would be absorbed by the Columbia River below the dam without harm to the populated areas.

Shasta Dam in Northern California — "The dam has been in existence some two decades and if there was any danger of a major slide, it would have occurred by now," Carder said.

The earth there is largely composed of hard volcanic rock covered by soil, but the soil is not deep. If it came down, it would only be in small amounts. Furthermore, although there have been earthquakes about 50 or 60 miles to the west, no major one has occurred close to the dam."

Ginny Moving Near Coast of N. Carolina

By NOEL YANCEY

WILMINGTON, N.C. (AP) — Hurricane Ginny, still a dangerous, unpredictable lass, romped near the North Carolina coast today after offering a brief reprieve during the early morning hours.

The erratic storm, which became a hurricane 90 miles off Cape Hatteras last week and then slipped southward to Florida's coast and back, headed out to sea shortly before midnight. But, resuming its former hesitancy to keep a definite course, she shuttled in toward land early today.

In an early advisory, the Weather Bureau estimated her center to be about 60 statute miles southeast of Wilmington.

Ginny was expected to move generally toward the northeast, shifting to east-northeast. The Weather Bureau warned that all precautions should be continued along North Carolina's southeastern coast.

"It is expected that the east-northeastward movement away from the coast as forecast earlier will be resumed later this morning," the Weather Bureau said.

"However, the small-scale oscillation in the track has kept the area of gales near the beaches in southeastern North Carolina and these may persist and spread toward Hatteras today."

Ginny threatened the Carolinas' coast most of Friday before shifting direction and heading away from the mainland.

Late Friday there was a general scramble from Charleston, S.C., to Morehead City, N.C., as residents prepared for her visit.

Many beach houses along the coastline were evacuated and residents went to storm shelters set up in armories, schools and churches. A Civil Defense official estimated that 3,000 residents along South Carolina's Grand Strand resort area vacated their homes, 1,500 of them in the Charleston area. These were back home before nightfall, however.

Girl 5, Struck, Killed by Car

FORT SMITH, Ark. (AP) — Dorothy Stultz, 5, of Fort Smith, was killed Wednesday when struck by a car driven by Alice McDowell, 55, also of Fort Smith.

A. M. McClain of the Fort Smith Police Dept. said the girl ran in front of the car. No charges were filed, he said.

Reassurance by Vance Is Accepted

BONN, Germany (AP) — The West German government said today the issue of U.S. troop strength in Europe has lost importance because of the reassurances given in Frankfurt by Secretary of the Army Cyrus R. Vance.

Vance said the United States "has no intention of withdrawing any of our six division equivalents which are here" in West Germany.

A government spokesman, Karl Guenther Von Hase, told a news conference in Bonn this caused the U.S. troop issue to slip down on the agenda of U.S. — West German talks.

Secretary of State Dean Rusk arrived here earlier today to counter fears that Exercise Big Lift — the aerial transfer of the 2nd Armored Division from Texas — meant the United States would pull out some of its 250,000 soldiers based in Europe.

Rusk is meeting the new chancellor, Ludwig Erhard, and other West German leaders.

Rusk himself made a reassuring statement upon his arrival, saying the Big Lift operation "means the United States has more power in Germany than ever before."

Von Hase said the troop issue will still be taken up in the Rusk talks, but only to be "finally disposed of." He said that now the principal themes will be East-West relations and prospective tariff reductions.

Rusk said before leaving Washington that he would explain to the West German government that the United States fully intends to continue meeting its Atlantic Alliance commitments.

No Digit Dialing — No Telephones

By BOB THOMAS
AP Movie-Television Writer

PUERTO VALLARTA, Mexico (AP)—There is no digit dialing in this sun-drenched resort town for the simple reason that there are no telephones.

No television, either. The lack of such modern necessities—plus reasonable prices, excellent fishing and hunting, and stunning scenery—have made Puerto Vallarta a treasured hideaway from a small but growing band of American tourists.

Says Mexico aficionado Tennessee Williams: "This place has the same unspoiled beauty that Acapulco had 20 years ago."

That Puerto Vallarta will go the commercial way of Acapulco is the fear of its fond admirers. The first big hotel, the Posada Vallarta with 150 rooms, is scheduled to open next month.

The world's attention is being focused here with the shooting of "The Night of the Iguana," starring Richard Burton, Ava Gardner, Deborah Kerr, Sue Lyon and James Ward. As you may have read by now, Mr. Burton's sometime co-star, Elizabeth Taylor, has accompanied him here.

At this early stage in the filming it would appear that the advent of the movie company has done little to change the local scene. The local citizens seem to be going about their lives with the same easy pace, paying scant heed to the famous visitors.

It has not been a wholesale invasion, as when the "Mutiny on the Bounty" troupe descended on Tahiti to lavish its millions. No sets had to be built in town. Most of the crew was recruited from the craftsmen of Mexico City.

So Puerto Vallarta is likely to survive "The Night of the Iguana." Whether it will also survive the coming onslaught of tourists remains to be seen.

Paradise for Clock Watchers

MEMPHIS (AP)—Some offices in the new federal building here started out as a veritable paradise for clock watchers.

The contract for the $13.5 million building called for 365 clocks but didn't specify where they were to be placed.

The result was that some offices got more time-pieces than employees. One had eight clocks to tell five workers when it was quitting time.

The General Services Administration, which will manage the building, is removing the excess clocks and storing them until it can be decided where they are needed.

Texarkana Plant Plans Expansion

By LEN TALIAFERRO

TEXARKANA, Ark. (AP)—North American Car Corp. of Texarkana hopes to double its capacity and get into the national market for bigger railroad tank cars with an expansion financed by a proposed $1 million bond issue.

The bond election will be Nov. 26. Texarkana residents approved a $5 million bond issue earlier this year to move the company into a new plant on the outskirts of the city, in which it is building and repairing railroad cars.

The tank cars now produced at the plant range in size from 8,000 to 30,000 gallons. George T. Bailey, plant superintendent, said there is a growing market for larger cars to move more material cheaper.

Bailey said the new bond issue will finance construction and equipping structures to build the larger cars, which may someday range up to 50,000 gallons in capacity.

The new cars will cut down greatly on transportation cost of liquid products, Bailey said.

L. E. Gilliland, manager of the Texarkana Chamber of Commerce, said the expansion would make the railroad car plant "the biggest thing in most respects in Texarkana."

North American used $3.2 million of the earlier approved funds, contributed close to $5 million of its own and built a whole new facility on a 56 acre tract.

The firm moved into the new facilities from its old plant on a one and a half acre site in the railroad yards in downtown Texarkana.

Hardly before becoming settled in the new home, plant officials realized that they needed even more facilities than they first had anticipated.

North American assembles railroad tank cars for use by chemical companies, oil companies and other industries requiring the transportation of large amounts of liquids.

It also carries out complete maintenance work on tank cars, hopper cars, and automobile transportation cars. This ranges from a paint job to a complete overhaul of the cars.

Bailey says the plant now can overhaul two cars a day. The proposed expansion will increase the capacity to five cars a day.

Most of the cars produced by North American are leased to industry rather than sold.

This alleviates industry of the responsibility and the expense of car maintenance which North American can readily handle with its facilities.

The cars are not completely constructed in the plant. The tank bodies come from one place, the wheels from another and the parts of the frames of the car from another. The frame is the only part of the car which is actually built in the plant. The other parts are pieced together.

Misunderstanding, Faubus Contends

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—Gov. Orval E. Faubus dismissed as a misunderstanding Wednesday a disagreement between two state agencies over the amount of funds to be paid to finance the Lake Neark project near Osceola, and said "If it's held up, there'd better be a good and sufficient reason."

The Game and Fish Commission billed the Publicity and Parks Commission for $50,000 Tuesday.

Bob Evans, director of the parks department, said it had agreed to pay only $25,000, which already had been paid.

Faubus said he could not speak for the G&F Commission, but added that he felt sure it could afford additional outlay for the lake. The commission already has put up $50,000.

Lake Neark, which is to cover 400 acres of an old Mississippi River bed, is expected to cost $200,000 to $225,000. A federal grant of $12,500 has been allocated to it. The state may match all or part of the grant.

THREE CHILDREN, TWO MARRIED

By Helen Worden Erskine

Dear Helen: My husband and I talk of divorce but hesitate to take the step because of Baby, now two and a half. I have always heard that it is the wife's place to keep romance alive and thought I had until last year when, suddenly, my husband acted if he didn't care.

I asked him where I failed but he wouldn't say. We married three years ago—I was 16 and he 18. It seemed like true love at the time but, gosh, how things have changed!

Now I am turning to someone who gives me the love my husband can't or won't give me. It's all got me so confused that I don't know what I'm doing half of the time. Help me if you can. —Befuddled

Dear Befuddled: It's too bad that many of us have to make the most important decision of our lives at the time when emotion is at its peak and reason at its depth.

Three years ago you and your husband were children yourselves and brought another child into your picture to compound your marital mistake. In spite of being parents you both still have a lot of growing up to do before you're ready for a mature, responsible relationship with each other, or with someone else.

Admitting that a problem exists is only the first step toward solving it. Both you and your husband better face up to the fact that the "true love" you originally felt was probably not love and is certainly not true. What was the basis of your original attraction to each other? Are there still any elements in it which might be revived sufficiently to form a new attachment founded on affection and mutual respect?

You each should be willing to put the needs of the other ahead of your own and the rights of your child ahead of everything. This is a tall order. Perhaps you aren't ready to even think about it. In which case no decision you make regarding divorce, remarriage, or anything else has much chance of success.

Dear Helen: You're a wrong about young people dating. If you raise your children properly they are mature enough at 13 and will have a good husband ready to date. I have four daughters ranging in age from 13 to 17. The eldest is to be married this month. She dated at 13 and will have a good husband. So you see there is no reason why our young girls shouldn't date early. —Confident Mother, Warren, Ohio

Dear Confident Mother: If you're so "confident" why consult me? Your reasoning is slightly askew. You write that your 17-year-old daughter started dating four years ago and will now "have a good husband." Is this supposed to be an argument for early dating? If so, it's lost on me. I still don't believe in early dating or early marriage. Send a stamped self-addressed envelope for my leaflet, "What Age for Dating?"

Dear Helen: Two couples we know made reservations at a lodge, planning to spend a week there together, in a four-bedroom cabin. A month and a half before the vacation, Couple Number One notified their friends they would not be able to go. However, they agreed to pay their share.

Meanwhile Couple Number Two found another twosome to join them. Without notifying Couple Number One, they informed the new pair that their share of the expenses would be one-third of the total cost.

The first couple, learning by chance of the arrangement, were very angry, feeling that they should have been consulted. The second couple replied that what they did no longer concerned the first pair.

Furthermore, Couple Two and Three see no reason to reimburse Couple Number One for the reservation, insisting it was their right to take advantage of the first couple's ill-luck. What is your opinion of the behavior of Couple Number Two? —Bewildered

Dear Bewildered: Low. However, since Couple Number One agreed to take the loss, they shouldn't cry in their tea. All sound like pretty poor sports to me.

Have you a problem? Perhaps Helen Worden Erskine can help you. Write her in care of this newspaper, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

How had Tessa known where to find Gibbon? Barcello had suggested the answer; it was almost self-evident. Following Val's death, Gibbon had been left still desperate for money.

He probably hadn't known that the money Val had paid him had come from Todd. He had turned to the only source left to him, the Wingates. Simply, he had phoned their home. Win being in bed, Tessa must have taken the call. Gibbon had demanded money for his silence. Since he was afraid to show his face, particularly in that neighborhood, he had also demanded that Tessa bring it to him—not dreaming that he was inviting a murderer to come and kill him.

"The question for you to ask yourself, kid, is this. Did Tessa take the judge's capsules? Because they were the only thing available, or did she have a double purpose? Didn't she stop to think they might be traced, she might be making it rougher for you? You were already under suspicion, and the worse it looked for you the safer she'd be. Did she actually think of framing you? If not, it worked out that way. Either way, she was entirely willing to let it pin Gibbon's murder on you."

Blake realized fully now why Todd's last talk with Tessa had been so strangely pointed and so disturbing to her. Her purpose had been to sound her out, to confirm beyond all doubt a conviction already formed, that she would never lift a finger to absolve Blake.

"What could I do?" Todd asked. "Even after things got so rough for you, I could never accuse Tessa openly. It would hurt Ruth far too much — it might wreck our marriage. When Barcello began bearing down on you, it put me in a spot. It would have been even worse if he'd come at me. Also for Ruth's sake . . . not to mention my own . . . I wasn't about to be so quixotic as to shoulder the blame."

That night on the boat, the night of Val's death, Todd had endeavored to cover up the truth by faking a raid, not so much for himself as for the guilty woman.

"That tip-off Barcello told Tessa about—it could be true. Or he might have figured an angle and faked it."

It was possible—although in Blake's estimation Barcello was too proper for such trickery.

Leaving the pier, they found Jean waiting on the sidewalk. Lieutenant Barcello was standing beside his parked car; the technician was sitting inside it. "You may not believe this, Mr. Carden, but it's true. I began by trying to eliminate you from the case. It didn't work. For one thing, you hurt yourself by withholding information. For another, circumstances kept closing in on you."

"How well I know." "Still, little things kept bothering me. For instance, in Mrs. Hayward's case, the weapon. It seemed to me that a man bent on murder, who owned a gun, would take it with him. Or, you're big enough to have strangled her easily. Instead, a weapon like an ice pick. That suggested a woman rather than a man."

Blake looked at Jean. She had quietly come closer; she was hanging on Barcello's words. "Something like an ice pick? Yes—and that likelihood underscored the probability of a swimmer. Then I remembered that I'd heard Mrs. Wingate mention her husband's wood-working shop — and something clicked."

He turned to the car. The technician had his box on his lap. He opened it and removed a long white envelope open at one end. Barcello brought it.

He had removed from the envelope a sharp-pointed tool having a bulbous plastic handle. "It's a scribe, or scriber, used instead of a pencil for marking saw cuts on wood. It was in the water, but traces of hemoglobin remained. The entire shaft gave a positive reaction to the tests made there in the shop. That alone was all I needed. That was the clincher." He added, "Of course I had a warrant ready for it."

He returned the weapon to the technician and looked up at the helicopter. "I still don't know what Mrs. Wingate's motive was, or what drove her. Mr. Shellam will want to go into that with you—in confidence, I am sure. Mr. Carden, are we still friends?"

Blake offered his hand and Barcello gripped it warmly. He had a parting thought; he looked quizzically at Blake.

"You know, Mr. Carden, there were times when I thought you were covering up for your broth-

State Leads in Urban Planning

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP)—Arkansas is one of the leading states in urban planning and development because it has pioneered cooperation between local, state and federal agencies, a University of Arkansas official told highway officials at Portland today.

William S. Bonner, head of the university's division of city planning, was principal speaker at the 49th meeting of the American Association of State Highway Officials (AASHO).

He said a project begun in 1959 at Jonesboro, Ark., was the first in the United States in which every possible governmental agency — city, county, state highway department, state planning agency and federal bureau of public roads — was included in a cooperative program of complete planning for a city's development.

Marked Tree, Ark., Bonner said, is in an early stage of development, but is believed to be the first city under 5,000 population to benefit from the five-way cooperative planning inaugurated in Jonesboro.

Community planners and highway planners should attend seminars at which each could work with others and learn their duties, functions and responsibilities, Bonner said. Arkansas has benefited from this type of activity, he said.

The Urban Renewal Administration, which allocates funds for slum clearance and other city improvements, should coordinate its efforts with the bureau of public roads to work out common descriptions for community planning and urban transportation programs, Bonner said.

He also urged state highway officials to work closely with city officials in the solution of urban transportation problems.

Wednesday, the officials heard John C. Mackie of Lansing, Mich., president of the AASHO and Michigan's highway director, forecast a future expansion of the Interstate highway system when the present planned 41,000 miles is completed in 1972.

Mackie said the Interstate system has revolutionized mobility in the U.S. He predicted motorists will back a 10,000 miles to 20,000 miles extension of the Interstate system.

Mousketer Gets $46,950 Savings

LOS ANGELES (AP)—One-time Mousketer Annette Funicello turned 21 Tuesday. Wednesday, she turned up at Superior Court to collect $46,950 in savings bonds, earned while she was under contract to Walt Disney.

"First get my folks a new car, then buy myself some clothes," she said, rolling her eyes.

Miss Funicello was put under contract to Disney when she was 12 and appeared on his "Mickey Mouse Club" television show. The bonds represent 20 per cent of her salary during the contract period.

Urban Renewal Program Endorsed

WASHINGTON (AP)—Mayor Byron R. Morse of Little Rock, Ark., and B. Finley Vinson, a banker and head of Little Rock's Urban Progress Association, strongly endorsed urban renewal programs in testimony before a House banking subcommittee Tuesday.

The subcommittee is taking a look at the urban renewal program.

Little Rock "is proud of the fine record of solid accomplishment achieved by our local urban renewal program," Morse said.

He said the program probably could not have been done "without the financial assistance made available under the urban renewal program."

Arkansas Elected

ASHEVILLE, N.C. (AP)—M. T. McMurray of Little Rock, Ark., was elected to the five-member planning committee of the Southern Regional Conference on Mental Health Statistics at the group's meeting Wednesday at Asheville.

He shook his head, smiling at himself. "How wrong can a man be!"

Blake and Todd stood staring at each other as he turned away and walked out of their lives.

Four Alarm Fire, Everybody Safe

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—A spectacular four-alarm fire damaged the upper two floors of a three-story Little Rock rooming house early today but all occupants escaped unharmed.

A fireman was hospitalized for observation after he suffered chest pains and a feeling of numbness in his arms.

Firemen and residents said the fire apparently started in the attic at the rear of the structure which was thought to be about 100 years old.

Flames broke through the roof and were shooting skyward more than 100 feet when firemen arrived. The fire was extinguished after a two-hour battle.

32,367 Enroll in Arkansas' 22 Colleges

By WICK TEMPLE
Associated Press Staff Writer

Arkansas' colleges and universities, bursting at the seams, enrolled almost 2,000 more students this term than last fall and educators expect the biggest onslaught of students ever in 1964.

An Associated Press survey shows 32,367 students in 22 institutions of higher learning in Arkansas this fall, compared to 30,390 at the same time last year.

Many schools are frantically building dormitories and expanding classroom space to take care of the crop of "war babies" educators expect to hit the colleges next fall.

"The big push is in the high schools now," said Dr. George S. Benson, president of Harding College at Searcy. "It's just beginning to hit the colleges. It's been 18 years since the end of World War II and the next four years will be a real crisis for every school."

Fifteen of the 22 colleges surveyed had record enrollments this fall and all but six had increases over last year.

Four of the six schools that lost enrollment are church-supported. They are Harding (Church of Christ), College of the Ozarks (Presbyterian), Hendrix (Methodist) and Shorter (Methodist). The other two are Beebe Junior College, a branch of Arkansas State, and Arkansas AM&N.

A few colleges had to turn students away, but most are squeezing them in under makeshift conditions.

Plain chairs are placed beside desks in some classrooms. And some students are having to live in sub-standard housing while contractors work to finish dormitories.

But the war babies aren't the only reason for the big college crush. William Hughes, assistant to the president of the University of Arkansas, points out that a greater percentage of high school graduates want to go to college, there is more money at home to finance education, and a college degree is more important than ever.

The crush is felt everywhere — in state-supported colleges, private schools, church schools. No college seems to have enough space.

"The Commission on Higher Education has told us we can expect 4,000 students by 1972," said Dr. Silas D. Snow, president of Arkansas State Teachers College at Conway. This would almost double the enrollment.

Hendrix College, also at Conway, enrolled 572 this year compared to 615 last year. The drop was because of lack of accommodations. Two rooming houses near the campus were closed. But a new men's dormitory will be opened next September and enrollment is expected to top 700.

Arkansas A&M at Monticello is one of the few schools that reports "plenty of on-campus housing." But freshman facilities are jammed. There are plans for a new women's dormitory to house between 250 and 300.

The University of Arkansas set a record of 8,415 students on the Fayetteville Little Rock campuses. A new men's dorm to house 639 was opened at Fayetteville this fall and Hughes expects 7,900 next September.

Arkansas State at Jonesboro also set a record of 3,508, 165 more than last year. Dr. Carl Reng, president, said the school was preparing for another record next year "and the increase will continue yearly into the 1970s."

Fish Dying in Small Lakes, Ponds

By JOHN R. STARR

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Fish are dying by the thousands as small lakes and ponds dry up in the current drought but, according to the state Game and Fish Commission, there is no way to save them.

Sometimes the commission's personnel sear lakes and move fish to other locations but this is not feasible as a board operation.

Andrew Hulsey, chief of fisheries for the commission, said that "fish salvage" as he called such an operation, generally is a waste of time.

"By the time fish start dying it's too late to salvage them," he said.

Hulsey said the Game and Fish Commission has never salvaged fish from private waters unless it could use them for some specific purpose.

The Game and Fish Commission does salvage fish each year during the summer months from borrow pits along the Mississippi and Arkansas rivers. "They created giant fish traps when they took dirt from the borrow pits to build levees," Hulsey said. "The commission has spent hundreds of thousands of dollars rescuing fish from these pits in the last 30 years."

Fish are trapped in the pits when the rivers rise. Hulsey said the salvage is not practical but that fishermen insist on it.

"The public has not yet been educated enough for us to abandon it," Hulsey said.

Bobcats Claw Panthers 26-20 In 4-AA Victory

Burtonmen Get Seventh Win This Season

By CARTER HARDAGE

Hope Star Sports Writer

Hope pulled another squeaker out of the fire last night, their second in two weeks, to edge Magnolia 26-20, and assure themselves of top berth in Region 4AA.

Magnolia came to Hope ready to scrap last night, and almost pulled an upset. QB Mickey Christian, passing and running his way down the field, almost guided the Panthers to a victory, but dogged determination by the Bobcats turned the trick. Good work by McDowell, Wright and Burnett on defense, and the sure hand and guidance of McLarty on offense, playing even after receiving a painful, but not serious, injury, took the Cats down the road to victory.

A lot of credit needs to be given to both teams, Bobcats and Panthers, for a fine fight, in which there was never a slack moment.

When asked for a comment, Coach Francis, the perspiration dripping from his forehead, was unable to find any words, he simply shook his head. Head Coach Ben Burton had this to say: "they came to win, there's no question about that. I think the opening play made a difference in the way the game went. I'm certainly in no way trying to make excuses, but it did. Magnolia had their runners in high gear. That's the type of running that we can't contend with too well. Actually, it's hard to say anything intelligent about a game like that."

Well the Panthers were up for this game. They stayed up, too. In the air. Christian threw 29 passes and completed 10, one for a touchdown. He ran for the other two Magnolia scores. All in all, he had a pretty fair night.

Magnolia started getting the breaks right from the start, and they never failed to take advantage of them. When the Panthers kicked, it was a low one, so low that it bounced off one of the Bobcat linemen, who was obviously too stunned to do anything except try to cover the ball. He fell to the ground and missed. The ball, that is, not the ground. Anyway, Magnolia recovered on Hope's 48. From there, the Panthers traveled the remainder of the field in eight plays and 2½ minutes, scoring right end Dickey Henry on a 12 yard pass from Christian. Dorsey Bearden ran the point after to make the score 7-0 in favor of the Magnolia.

But the Cats were not to be taken advantage of. Runs by McDowell, Samuels, and Burnett took the ball down to the 19, where a 4 & 3 situation presented itself. McLarty calmly took things under control, and lofted a 19-yard touchdown bomb to Georgie Wright. Buddy Jordan's kick for the extra point was good, and the score was 7 up after only six minutes of playing time had elapsed.

It was late in the second period when tackle Jimmy (the Juice) Walker took the ball away from a Panther on the 10.

HE BLESSED the CHILDREN

As naturally as the flower turns its face to the sun, so does the human child respond to the love and grace of God...they know He loves them.

Jesus, who knew the Father's heart, said to some good people of His time — "Let the little children come unto me and forbid them not."

Surely no woman or man would detour a child in his natural search for God and goodness. Take them to church...show them the way...the Master still commands us. They may be ours for a few short years.

They are His forever. How important then to introduce them to Jesus. Here they meet Him, know Him and love Him, for such is the Kingdom of God.
